

GREAT BEAR SEA

Sample Itinerary

Start: Prince Rupert, BC

Finish: Bella Bella, BC

Vessel: SV Island Roamer

Note: This is intended as a Sample Itinerary. Please do not book flights based on information listed in this document as changes are possible. You will be provided with an Arrivals and Departures Itinerary once all details have been confirmed.

This 8-day voyage operates one-way from Prince Rupert to Bella Bella, BC in order to access some of the most remote and wild areas of the British Columbia coast. The Great Bear Rainforest is the largest remaining tract of unspoiled temperate rainforest remaining in the world. There are several routes along the famed 'Inside Passage' and we will weave our way south, guided by the wildlife, weather and group interests. The geography ranges from the towering Coast Mountains with waterfalls cascading thousands of feet, to large coastal islands such as Pitt, Campania and Princess Royal, and right out to the low lying islands bordering Hecate Strait. We anchor every night in a new and secluded bay – a perfect time to explore by zodiac or sea kayak along the shore. When we see wildlife we stop to enjoy the experience. We expect to go ashore every day to explore.

The passages of the North and Central Coast are rich feeding grounds for marine mammals. Salmon returning to spawn congregate in waterways leading to their natal streams and rivers. This is high season for fish-eating "resident" orcas. By mid-summer humpback whales return to these passages to feed on small schools of fish, such as herring, sand lance or pilchard. We will spend time in the lower reaches of Douglas Channel – an area designated as critical habitat for both orcas and humpback whales. Whale researchers from Cetacea Lab on Gil Island estimate that one hundred humpbacks spend the summer and fall feeding in the area. In addition, recent research has learned that this area is also important to fin whales – the second largest creature on the planet. These speedy whales can be the same length as our yacht and were some of the last to suffer from whaling. Their numbers are now recovering and there are good chances we may encounter them and in addition, we expect to see a variety of other species of marine mammals – seals, sea lions, and porpoise. We will visit some beautiful coastal estuaries and hope to see grizzly bears. If we are very lucky, we may even see sea otters. Although we do not visit spirit bear stands, there is a chance we may spot one on the shoreline.

In 2006, following the Great Bear Rainforest Agreement between the British Columbia government, Coastal First Nations, the forestry industry and environmental groups, 10% of the Great Bear Rainforest was set aside for protection as Conservancies. First Nations received support to shift from resource-based revenue to developing ecotourism and any logging must now meet sustainable ecosystem-based management guidelines. Just this year, the British Columbia government and Coastal First Nations announced that a further 75% of the land area will be protected. This stretch of coastline is a rich and unique ecosystem of impressive biodiversity – from the herring and salmon in the sea, to large coastal carnivores to massive cedar trees and hemlocks. This lush green forest lining the waterway belongs to one of the largest remaining tracts of unspoiled temperate rainforest left in the World.

We intentionally keep the itinerary for the voyage flexible in order to create the best wildlife experiences.

Arrival Day into Prince Rupert

Arrive in Prince Rupert the day prior to your trip start. Overnight at a local hotel or bed & breakfast (please see our suggested accommodation list below). This ensures we depart on time as there can be unforeseen weather delays when travelling in coastal regions. Prince Rupert's Historic Downtown and Cow Bay shopping districts both offer many shops, galleries, restaurants and cafes, and there is also the wonderfully informative Museum of Northern British Columbia that you can visit.

Day 1 – Trip Start

Board our vessel late morning, conveniently located in quaint Cow Bay a few blocks from the downtown core in Prince Rupert. Upon boarding the crew will show you to your cabin and we will have introductions and complete a safety orientation. We will then push off and head south past the mouth of the mighty Skeena River and Lelu Island - the proposed location for an LNG shipping facility resulting in environmental concerns surrounding important salmon habitat and increased tanker traffic. We will then depart on our journey south through a labyrinth of rich, coastal British Columbia wilderness.

Day 2 – 7

From Chatham Sound we will enter Grenville Channel, part of the famous "Inside Passage" route to Alaska where we can expect to see fishing boats, tugs towing enormous barges and the occasional ferry passing by.

This region is typically an area known for humpback whales. We keep an eye out for large spouts and hope to witness very interesting behaviour like breaches, pectoral slaps, spy-hopping and possibly bubble-net feeding. We plan to visit the researchers at Cetacea Lab in lower Douglas Channel to learn about their fascinating work.

The majority of this trip is spent in traditional Tsimshian First Nations territory and we expect to go ashore to see a coastal First Nation's new big house with its impressive interior totem poles.

A soak in natural hot pools begins our journey further south into the sheltered and remote heart of the Great Bear Rainforest. We will sail along the coastline of Princess Royal Island and into river estuaries where we hope to see the mighty grizzly. We keep watch for orca and other marine mammals like porpoise and Steller sea lions. We explore Fiordland Conservancy. With its high granite cliffs, we experience a change in scenery on our way to remote estuaries where we hope to see grizzlies foraging on the shore.

Day 8

As we approach the waters of Milbanke Sound keep watch for sea otters. With the nuclear testing at Amchitka Island, Alaska between 1968 and 1972, 89 sea otters were transplanted to Vancouver Island. Some found their way to the central coast and started a colony. You might spot them in the kelp beds wrapped in the leaves of kelp to anchor themselves against the currents

Our trip finishes in the small First Nations coastal town of Bella Bella. Located on remote Campbell Island, Bella Bella - also known as Waglisla - is the home of the Heiltsuk First Nation. Their traditional territory is spread out over 16,658 square kilometers. Bella Bella a town of 1450 residents is located 181km north of Vancouver Island and 144km west of Bella Coola and is only accessible by air or ferry/ boat.

We will arrive at the Bella Bella Municipal Dock before noon in time to catch the afternoon Pacific Coastal flight to Vancouver, BC. Here you will be met by Starr Taxi and transported to the airport.

Please note that Star Shuttle requires a cash payment of CAD $15 per person at time of travel.

EMERGENCY CONTACT INFORMATION

Please note that the Great Bear Rainforest is a remote wilderness area. Radio and satellite telephone communications are not always dependable, and it can take considerable time to make contact with the outside world. You will not have cellular coverage during most of the trip. If someone back home needs to get in touch with you for an important message, instruct them to call the Bluewater Adventures office (604) 980-3800 / Toll Free: 1-888-877-1770. Office hours are Monday to Friday (9:00 am to 5:00 pm PST). If they are unable to speak with our office staff, they should leave a detailed message which will be relayed at the first opportunity.

In the event of an emergency they should first call the Bluewater Adventures office and speak with our staff or call the emergency telephone number provided through the recorded message. If time is of the essence and the situation is critical, they may call Prince Rupert Coast Guard Radio at (250) 627 3081. Explain the situation and request assistance in contacting a passenger sailing the Great Bear Rainforest area. If Coast Guard deems the situation to be sufficiently urgent they will then issue a radio alert for S/V Island Odyssey to contact Coast Guard on Channel 16 for an urgent message. However, it still may take some time to establish contact.
