Prince Rupert, BC to Petersburg, AK

SAMPLE ITINERARY

Arrive into Prince Rupert, BC - Plan to arrive at least one day prior to your trip departure and overnight at one of the several accommodation options located in Prince Rupert. If you have time, visit the Museum of Northern British Columbia located a few blocks from downtown. The museum organizes local tours to several petroglyph sites. The historic North Pacific Cannery, located about 20 minutes away by taxi, has interesting displays explaining historic salmon fishing and canning operations. For more information about Prince Rupert call 1-800-667-1994 or visit <http://www.visitprincerupert.com/>

Throughout our voyage the daily itinerary remains flexible to meet group interests, weather patterns, and of course, to take full advantage of wildlife sightings

Day 1 – 9:30 am - Meet at the top of the dock on the east side of the Atlin Terminal building in Cow Bay – a 5 minute taxi ride from downtown. A Bluewater crew member will meet you at the top of the dock. After cabin assignments, and a safety orientation we will depart Prince Rupert harbour for the beauty of Chatham Sound and its myriad of islands. The entrance to Portland Canal marks the border between Alaska and British Columbia. Sailing past Misty Fjords National Monument, we enjoy the beautiful scenery of snow-capped mountains rising majestically out of the ocean. Guided by our naturalist we will spot and identify fascinating wildlife, explore the shoreline for intertidal creatures and keep a daily record of the various species of birds, plants and marine mammals we observe. Each night we will anchor in a new scenic bay.

Days 2-10 – Cruising up Revillagigedo Channel, past the historic Native American settlement of Saxman, our first major stop will be at Ketchikan. In the late 1800's the then lucrative cannery industry earned Ketchikan the title of "Salmon Capital of the World". We will have time to walk along the old boardwalk "streets" and the ambitious may proceed further to the Totem Heritage Center to see original totem poles collected from uninhabited Tlingit and Haida Villages.

We continue north among the narrow passages of Etoilin and Wrangell Islands to Anan Bay. Anan Creek has the largest run of pink salmon in Southeast Alaska, and this accumulation of food attracts bears, eagles and seals. We will visit the bear viewing observatory, built by the US Forest Service. It is amazing to watch bears feeding on spawning salmon in a rushing river – truly a classic Alaska experience. Access to Anan is limited in order to protect the wildlife and local habitat.

We will disembark the Island Odyssey for an afternoon jet boat experience to the LeConte Glacier – the southernmost tidewater glacier. In the last 15 years, it has receded by over a mile and a half with enormous slabs of ice "calving" into the ocean.

Frederick Sound is the core feeding area for humpback whales in Southeast Alaska. Journeying through this area, we will see whales on a daily basis. Our onboard Naturalist will identify and explain the fascinating feeding techniques of these giant cetaceans and will help to spot other marine mammals in the area.

Guests will enjoy another Southeast Alaska tidewater glacier, the Dawes Glacier up Endicott Arm. We voyage up this picturesque inlet carved by the moving glacial ice over millions of years. We keep watch for mountain goats and cascading waterfalls as we approach this monolithic wall of ice! With a good tide, we expect to lay anchor in a secluded cove in the remote and picturesque Ford's Terror.

Admiralty Island National Monument has the highest concentration of brown bears and eagles in North America and has some beautiful evening anchorages – keep an eye out for brown bears on the shoreline!

Please note: Only a limited number of visitors are permitted to visit these bear viewing areas, daily, due to National Park restrictions. Access is dependent on our success in obtaining these permits for our guests.

Day 9 – Trip Finish: – On the last morning we sail into Petersburg, Alaska to complete our voyage. Petersburg, known as “little Norway”, is a delightful town to explore. We will disembark in time to catch a late afternoon flight.
